Men and Their Faces.

The life and works of Dante tally with his face. In the face of Cromwell the great frontal base of his brain, as left in his mask, and the power of his lower jaw, are the upper and nether mill-stones of his history. In modern portraits, Garrison's lamb-like face has abolition; Grant's, the grip, fighting it out on this line if it takes all Summer, and leaving not a crow's ration in the valley; letting us have peace in unconditional surrender.

A true portrait is that incorrigible page of history which neither justice nor mercy invalidates. It is the dead-level of man 'mid fluctuating fashion and fickle opinion. Our national portraiture, though likely to be hung for a while in the Rogues' Gallery, in incorruptible history, every truly rendered face proclaiming, "Know all men by these presents," as unlying as light itself. A good likeness is a rogue's worst enemy. It will surely betray him, and anon retort on his alter ego, "I told you so." God made man in his own human image. So the soul creates its outer shell in likeness to itself. If the man is hid in his stature, it is the duty of the artist to pick him out.—"A Study of Shakespeare's Portraits," Scribner for September

Bank of Deposit.

She was a very pretty lady, eighteen or thereabouts, and every young man in the street car was looking square at her. She held the nickle in her mouth, between her teeth for safe keeping, and that she might be promptly on hand when the conductor demanded fare. The street car glided along as that fair young creature was arranging her tie-back, and her bonnet and her blonde hair, all unconscious of impending accident. But such is life. The conductor stood before her with extended digits, while her soft dimpled hand stole in gentle confidence toward the nickle reposing between those ruby lips—when—bump—the hand had stopped a few inches from her lips, a look of mingled astonishment and anguish shot across her angelic countenance as she rose in disorder, pulled the bellstrap and dismounted.—Indianapolis Journal.

Hymeneal.

This climax in the way of wedding notices appears in an Eastern paper: "The large blue eyes of the bride seemed brighter than ever; and, with her light hair, formed a suitable contrast to her husband's extremely black hair and eyes. This matrimonial alliance has not been entered into unadvisedly; it has been in contemplation for about two years, and meets with the most cordial approval of all the relatives and of friends of the newly married couple. The bride's mother regards her son-in-law as if he were her own son. He will continue, as heretofore, to be employed in the vegetable-ivory button factory."

LIGHTNING PICTURES.

Wonders of the Rocky Mountains.

Photographing by Electricity—Beautiful Pictures on the Rocks—Some Exquisite Specimens from Nature's Art Gallery—A Study for Scientists.

WAGONWHEEL GAP, RIO GRANDE, August 14, 1875.

To the Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette:

GENTLEMEN: The little valley in which the Hot Sulphur Springs are located is one of the most beautiful spots I ever was in. The level ground is about two miles long and a quarter wide, covered heavily with grass. A creek having a strong and rapid flow of the purest water runs through it in a somewhat serpentine channel. The springs boil up from the depths of the earth near the level of the creek, an abundant flow of gas causing them to boil violently. But having spoken of them before, I need not say anything more about them now.

Around the valley, sloping up towards the lofty mountains which bound the view in all directions, covered as they are with pine and fir trees to their summits, are foot hills of the most graceful contour, sprinkled with pine and fir trees and richly clothed with the most nutritious grasses, among which some beautiful and unique flowers grow. Bunch grass prevails, and between the bunches the earth is bare, exposing pebbles in endless variety, among which a few of agate, chalcedony and crystals of every kind are found. The ladies often ramble over these slopes gathering these gems, some of which are very pretty, and of some value if put through the hands of a lapidary.

This morning I took a ramble over one of the nearest knolls, not so much to gather precious stones as to observe the strange variety of fragments of rocks, from the most ancient to the most modern, which have been jumbled together by forces both plutonic and aquatic, from granite and honey-combed lava to the most delicate sedimentary deposit. In the face of a little cliff which I visited, the perpendicular face of which was eight or ten feet high, I observed that it was made up of many thousands of laminae, nearly horizontal, some an inch in thickness, but the greater number not the twentieth part of that—some not thicker than stout wrapping paper. They are singularly uniform in thickness, very smooth on the surface, of fine-grained texture, and of a yellowish color. But the most remarkable thing about them is that on the surface of some of them are pictures of trees and shrubs of pine or fir as perfect as any photographer could make. I have a little piece lying on the table before me now, about one-twentieth of an inch thick, on which the pictures of nine or ten little trees are printed, apparently standing in a row. The tallest, which is double the height of any other, is only half an inch high, yet every branch and twig is clearly depicted. Is it natural photography? or is it a minute independent vegetable growth? I incline to the last hypothesis; but why should a very minute mossy growth over the face of a thin flag like this take the form in every instance of a veritable tree such as we see all around us? I shall endeavor to carry this little specimen, delicate as it is, home, and perhaps to Pittsburgh, when I come.

That laminated cliff is in its structure just like the growth of a tree, only the successive deposits are not so uniform in thickness. Each layer, as I read it, marked the aqueous deposit of a year, and the varying thicknesses indicated the wetness or the dryness of the several years, as the thickness of the annual growths of trees show the abundance or scarcity of rain in the seasons in which they were deposited, only that the layers in this cliff varied greatly more than the growths of trees ever do. This cliff testifies to another fact, to wit: that, notwithstanding the tremendous eruptions and upheavals which must have occurred here in ages long past, the earth had very extended periods of rest, to be succeeded by other disturbances; for it is plain from the surroundings that great and violent changes took place after it was deposited. I thought, as I walked back to the camp that, although a man may observe much and learn much in such a region as this, yet what he sees only puzzles him more and more, and shows him how little he does or can know about the foundation of a globe like this.

Further Investigation.

I supposed that I had finished my letter, but upon talking with a gentleman of intelligence at our camp, and one who had spent the greater part of his life on or near these mountains, he assured me that these singular impressions upon smooth rocks and flags were photographic. I replied that it was simply impossible that they could be produced by sun-light, because the reflected light of a cloudy day was, owing to diffusion, inadequate to produce such effects, and that the direct rays of the sun could not produce clear and sharp pictures, such as those we held in our hands, because of the perpetual change of the angle of incidence. He rejoined that they were not caused by sun-light at all, but by vivid flashes of lightning. He then went on to relate what he had himself seen.

1. A clear delineation, in miniature, of a cluster of pine trees, standing on an opposite bluff, upon the face of a smooth, perpendicular cliff.

2. An agate, set in a finger ring, upon which the entire figure of a handsome conical pine tree, with branches, trunk, and even a part of the roots which had become denuded—the whole less than a quarter of an inch in diameter.

3. An agate, on which was depicted very perfectly, the head of a Rocky Mountain sheep, with its singularly ponderous spiral horns. This was set in a sleeve button. In the agates the figures seemed to be, and doubtless were, in the interior of the stone or crystal. This can only be accounted for on the hypothesis that crystalization was still going on when the impressions were made, and that it progressed until the pictures became deeply imbedded in the crystal.

4. On the Purgatoire, a river near the mountain base in Southern Colorado, there is a smooth-faced cliff, upon which a perfect picture of a Cinnamon bear is impressed—ears, eyes, tail, hams and claws. Its fore feet seem to be resting upon something, giving it a rampant attitude. This picture differs from all the others mentioned, in being of full natural size, or nearly so. I have myself seen some of the things I have mentioned.

In what are called moss agates, in which what has the appearance of the finest and most delicate moss is imbedded, I am now satisfied is caused by the photographs of pine forests covering whole mountain sides, immeasurably diminished. Lapidaries have sought for, but never found, any crystal matter in these gems, which they could have found had any real moss been imbedded. "Smoky agates" are probably produced by photographic impressions of dark clouds, out of which electric flashes are so apt to come.

That these effects have been produced by electric, and not solar light, is attested by an incident which occurred in these mountains a few years ago. A party of engineers were running a line. The transit was set looking into a pine forest. It was dinner hour. While the men were at dinner a violent thunder shower passed over. Returning to the instruments the engineer looked through his instrument and saw a pine forest; but as one lay in his line of sight that was all right. He then changed his position and pointed his instrument where there were no pine trees; but looking in he was astonished to find that the same pine forest lay in his line of vision. He shifted it again and again, but still with the same result. He then took out his object glass and, behold, a clear and distinct impression of the forest towards which it was set when the shower occurred was impressed upon it. I leave those who understand photography better than I do to explain this phenomenon.

To satisfy myself by my own researches and observation whether those pretty impressions of which I spoke in the first part of this article were the product of subtle vegetable matter which had crept into the close fissures between these laminae and took the forms of miniature trees, or whether they were produced by natural photography, I went back to the laminated cliff already spoken of. In this I was singularly successful. I first went to the face of the cliff and found that I could break it out in sections or blocks about eight inches long and four or five wide, and as thick as I pleased. I then turned over the thin laminae as I would the leaves of a book to search for pictures; but not a picture could I find except some very slight and indistinct traces on the exposed edges. I then turned my attention to the debris of the cliff which lay under my feet in cart loads. Here I found plenty of impressions, but for some time none sufficiently distinct to be worth carrying away. My eye then caught a flake, about eight inches long and about five wide, which seemed to be elaborately pictured. At first glance I could make nothing of it; but soon I saw a light colored line, a little serpentine, running from end to end. Where I stood was about fifty feet above the level of this valley and in full view of all the upper end from the springs to the canyon, with the sloping, grassy foot hills on the opposite side. I then saw that I held in my hand a bird's-eye map of the valley, and that the bright line was the creek. I compared every bend with the picture and found exact correspondence. On the west side lay some fifteen or twenty tons of clean luxuriant grass. This was well depicted. Below that was a patch of low shrubbery which gave a picture a little darker and coarser. On the east side, a short distance from the creek, ran a low, steep bluff thinly grassed. This gave a light streak. Above that a few pine trees which, being so distant, were mere specks, but plainly of vegetable growth. At the lower end was a white spot showing some rocks, the deposit of an ancient mineral spring.

This laminae is an object of curiosity in our camp, and every one is struck with the fidelity of the map. But that is not all. On the opposite side of the same laminae there is another map of a section of the mountain front directly opposite our encampment, and the same trees now growing are shown. This view, which has peculiar and easily distinguished features, is clearly in sight at the place where I found the stone. When one impression was taken one side of the stone was up; when the other was impressed upon it the opposite side must have been up. They bear no marks of antiquity. Most likely they were made this century, possibly within a decade. On the map of the valley there are appearances of little streams of water entering the creek on the east side, where no permanent streams exist, giving evidence of a heavy rain at the time when a flash of lightning impressed this map upon that thin layer of laminated rock lying loosely upon a pile of debris. I leave to more profound scientists than I pretend to be to account for and explain this strange phenomenon. I shall pack that stone, which is somewhat fragile, although composed of four distinct laminæ adhering together over part of the breadth, with all the care I can, and bring it with me, together with sundry other curious specimens of which I shall not speak at this time.

As ever, yours, &c.,

The Cincinnati Exposition.

Everything Rapidly Approaching Completion—The Grandest Display Ever Witnessed in the United States Promised.

CINCINNATI, August 26.—The sixth grand Cincinnati Industrial Exposition is now in such a forward state of completion that upon the hour of opening, 8 P. M., September 8th, it will present a more finished appearance than at any previous opening day. The opening ceremonies will be preceded by the grandest procession ever witnessed in the United States. Machines, manufactures and productions are rapidly arriving from all parts of the country and occupying assigned positions. Through the exertions of the Art Gallery committee, and a generous response of owners of celebrated paintings and engravings of some of the choicest works of art, never before publicly exhibited, have been secured. The grand Floral Hall, which has been in the hands of expert decorators for months, has now its grottoes, cascades, lakes, streams, bridges, etc., in an absolute state of completion, including flowers and plants used to decorate the rockwork. Its beauty far exceeds that of any previous year, and will alone attract visitors from all parts of the United States. The managers are unable to accommodate all the machinery offered this year, and Power Hall is expected, in its display of novelties and processes of manufacture, to eclipse all former displays of machinery in this nation.

TERRIBLE RIOT.

Eight Negroes Killed and Several Wounded.

VICKSBURG, August 26.—The Herald's special from Macon, Miss., of the 24th, reports a riot at New Hope church, in which eight negroes were killed and several wounded. The cause of the riot was a quarrel between a white man and a negro about drum-beating.

The Mississippi Valley Trading Company.

ST. LOUIS, August 26.—The American Board of Directors of the Mississippi Valley Trading Company held a meeting here last night, at which Mr. Warroll, Managing Director, was instructed to visit Louisville, Kentucky, with a view to establishing the central office of the company at that point. He was further instructed to visit all the sea ports from Norfolk, Virginia, to Galveston, Texas, and to report upon their adaptability as parts of the country for the operation of the company. He was also requested to visit all the railroads in the Mississippi valley and Gulf States, and report upon the facilities afforded by each for the transmission of merchandise and products, and also upon the most desirable centres for the operations of the company, and upon the agricultural, mineral and other resources of the country through which the several railroads pass, so as to enable the company to decide which are the most inviting fields for emigration.

A Drunken Father Kills His Child.

CINCINNATI, August 26.—Gustave Humler of Jamestown, Greene county, Ohio, while intoxicated last evening made an attempt to kill his wife. She fled across the street, to the house of a neighbor. Humler followed and made an unsuccessful attempt to get into the house by breaking windows. He then threatened to return to his home and kill the child, which was about eighteen months old, thinking this threat would induce his wife to come out; but it failing to have the desired effect, he returned to his house, procured a table knife, sharpened it upon the stove, took the infant from the arms of his little girl, twelve years old, laid it upon the floor and deliberately cut its throat from ear to ear. He then threw the child and knife upon the bed, and went back and told his wife what he had done. He was afterwards arrested. He still regrets he did not kill his wife.

Money for the Creek Indians.

EUFALA, I. T., August 26.—The regular annuity for the support of the Creek National Government, and also the appropriation for their schools for this fiscal year, amounting to $34,900, has been received, and will be paid out here to-morrow. This amount is five per cent. interest on the investment of funds held by the United States in trust for the Creek Indians. An additional sum of $2,710 will also be paid, appropriated by act of Congress of March 3, 1875, to resume the fulfillment of that portion of the Creek treaty of 1832 that had been suspended under the ruling of the Interior Department for two years past.

The Woodbury Patent.

CHICAGO, August 26.—The Woodbury Patent Planing Machine Company have compromised with the National Defense Association for $200,000 for licenses to one thousand mills, quashing all litigation and acknowledging the validity of the patent, which has been ratified by meetings held in St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit by Mr. J. T. Drew, their counsel, and the company have commenced suits against the owners of fifty thousand machines outside in the United States.

The question of the validity of the ordinance will be heard at the October term of Court.

SECOND EDITION.

THE EXCURSIONISTS.

Riding on a Rail to Niagara.

The Fastest Time on Record—The Success of the Excursion—A Large Company—The Route to the Falls—Sight Seeing—To Return To-day.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

NIAGARA FALLS, August 26, 1875.

The excursion train which left the Smoky City this morning arrived at this place this afternoon at half past three o'clock. It is said that this is the fastest time on record. It was fast enough, anyhow. We made no unnecessary stops, and bowled along at a lively rate. The train was made up of first class coaches, and the trip was a very delightful one. The excursion party was principally made up of persons from Pittsburgh and vicinity, but at several points along the way we took in goodly delegations until all the cars were comfortably filled. The excursion is under the management of the Messrs. Ruper of the Conneautville Courier, and so far has been managed with great success. Every arrangement seems to have been made for the comfort of the travelers, and we found no break or jar to mar our pleasure since we left home. In the party there are a number of ladies, some from Pittsburgh and others from the rural places, where we stopped to take on passengers. The assemblage, in point of character, is everything that could be desired. As soon as we arrived here this afternoon we commenced the tour of sights. All afternoon has been spent in that way, and we are not yet through. Ample time has been given to see everything thus far; there has been no rushing, and the arrangements have been made with such care for every detail, that everybody has had an opportunity to see with satisfaction all that is to be seen. We will have all to-morrow morning to finish up. To-night the excursionists are scattered around at the different hotels, on the American side, where they have all luxurious accommodations at ante-war prices. They kept up sight seeing until weariness overcame their desire to see even the wonders of Niagara. Some of them talk, however, of keeping on the watch to-night, as it promises to be a clear moonlight, and the lunar rainbow will then be visible—which is as beautiful as it is a rare sight.

The train will start on the return trip to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, and we expect to be in Pittsburgh about one o'clock Saturday morning. F.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Additional Mail Service Demanded by St. Louis.

No Apology Yet from Tripoli.

WASHINGTON, August 26, 1875.

The Chorpenning Case.

The Attorney General having given an adverse decision on the points presented in the Chorpenning case, Chorpenning has filed his application for relief on account of mail contracts in the Court of Claims. The amount involved is $463,000.

Additional Mail Service Demanded.

The monster petition sent by Postmaster Filley of St. Louis, and endorsed by Senators Dorsey, Bogy and Cockerell, emanating from the Merchants Exchange, Board of Trade, Manufacturers and Mechanics Exchange, the publishers of the Republican, Globe, Times, Post, Anzeiger, Dispatch, Journal, and bankers, merchants and business interests generally of St. Louis, does not, as heretofore erroneously stated, ask of the Postmaster General a fast train, but only such facilities as now exist on the routes by the New York Central, Erie and Lake Shore Railways to the Northwest, namely, a double daily service of railway post office cars. Only a single daily line of railroad post office service, of no avail to the West, exists upon the Pennsylvania Railroad from Pittsburgh to St. Louis.

War Claims.

About $225,000 awarded by the Court of Claims in twenty-four cases for captured and abandoned property will be paid. An appeal has been taken by the Government in other cases reported on by the special commissioner, involving between $300,000 and $400,000. Among the latter is the case of Robert M. Douglass, son of the late Senator Douglass, in whose favor an award of $163,1 0 was made on account of captured and abandoned cotton on the estate of his grandmother in Mississippi.

The Insult by Tripoli.

No information has yet been received here in regard to the action of the United States steamers Congress and Hartford, sent to Tripoli to demand reparation for the insult offered to the American consul and his wife. The negotiations are being conducted by Captain English. Should the Tripolitan authorities refuse to make reparation upon his demands, Rear Admiral Worden, of the European station, will be directed to proceed to Tripoli with all his force, and there await instructions.

Mississippi Republican State Convention.

JACKSON, MISS., August 26.—The Republican State Convention continued in session till four o'clock this morning. Mr. Buchanan, of Marshall county, was renominated for State Treasurer. The platform contains nothing new. The Daily Times, a Republican paper of this place, vigorously protests against the section congratulating the party on the successful and economical administration of Governor Ames, and thinks the raising of such an issue as presented by the adoption of that section as extremely impolitic.

It was resolved to refer to the Central organization the feasibility of a plan securing the introduction of gymnastics in the German American Teachers' Seminary. A vote of honor was given to Fred Bertsch, of Cincinnati, for an essay on gymnastics. It was resolved to urge upon Turner societies the propriety of representation at the Philadelphia Centennial.

LOUISVILLE EXPOSITION.

To be Opened Next Wednesday—The Natural History and Art Departments Full of Curiosities.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 26.—The Louisville Industrial Exposition opens next Wednesday. A great deal of space is now occupied with a vast variety of novelties. The opening day will be signalized by a monster procession, in which the mechanics and manufacturers of the cities about the falls will be represented. Several firms will make displays at a cost of over $60,000. All benevolent societies and military organizations will participate. The Governor will be present at the opening, and distinguished strangers from abroad have been invited. The Natural History Department will embrace the largest museum in the United States, being valued at a quarter million dollars. The Art Department will embrace the best works of American artists, private collections being partially excluded on account of the large variety of original pieces contributed. Other works of sculpture by Powers, Canova, Hart and other distinguished artists will be exhibited. Strangers from all parts of the South are coming into the city, and the opening festivities will be witnessed by thousands of people. Special rates on railroads and steamboats have been secured.

Attack on a Circus.

BATHURST, N. B., August 26.—This morning, while Gibbs' Menagerie was getting under way for this place, three men crawled up within fifty yards of the tent occupied by the canvass men, and fired two shot guns, instantly killing Wm. Spearing, of Calais, Maine, and dangerously wounding Amos Wagner, of Liverpool, N. S. After firing the men ran toward the shore, their tracks being seen after they jumped over the cliff. The Sheriff and a large posse, with the Coroner, immediately left in search of the murderers. The only reason known for the murder is a dispute that arose between the circus men and some roughs who were trying to gain admittance without paying last night.

PANIC IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The Bank of California Suspends Payment.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 16.—The Bank of California stopped paying checks at a quarter to three. Ralston says he has sufficient assets to meet all liabilities, and no one will lose anything, but at present there is no coin with which to transact business.

At five P. M. representatives of the press met in the President's office of the Bank of California. The following written statement was read:

"Office of the Bank of California, August 26, 1875.—The Trustees are under the painful necessity of stating to the customers of the bank and the public that the bank is compelled to suspend business at this moment, and without reports from agencies, is not prepared to make a statement as to the situation of the bank, but are now examining the interest critically, and will, at the earliest possible moment, make a definite report.

"By order of the Trustees.
"S. F. RANKIN, Secretary."

President Ralston stated orally that, on his own responsibilty and that of the officers of the bank, no doubt they would be able to meet all obligations. In reply to a question when they expected to open again he said "Not at all," and subsequently, on repeating the question, said: "We do not expect to resume." Ralston further stated that about $1,400,000 was paid out. No assistance was derived from other banks, though they had made applications for it. They telegraphed to all agencies of the bank to close.

It is thought no banks in the interior would be affected by the failure. The excitement on California street was intense. The street was blocked during the afternoon. The crowd, on the whole, was quiet and good natured, and much confidence is expressed in the ability of the bank to redeem its obligations. A run was made on the National Gold Bank and Trust Company, but the bank continued paying until the closing hour, and asserted its ability to settle all demands in coin or bonds. The other banks in the city expect no unusual demands on their resources.

The San Francisco and Pacific Stock Exchanges held no sessions this afternoon, adjourning to call, and the former passing a resolution forbidding members to do business in the interim. The late hour at which the suspension of the Bank of California occurred renders it difficult to calculate the effect on the financial interests at present.

The general feeling around town to-night is rather blue. The cashier of the National Gold Bank and Trust Company stated to a gentleman this evening that the bank would be open in the morning, but might have to suspend during the day. This bank paid out all its gold this afternoon, and a good deal of silver. If it can make arrangements to-night for coin, it may be able to ride over to-morrow. A run is expected on the San Francisco and Merchants' Exchange Banks to-morrow. A meeting of bank Presidents is called for this evening, to concert measures of relief. The Board of Brokers have also called a meeting.

$2,500,000 FAILURE.

Suspension of the Largest Sugar Importing House in the United States.

BALTIMORE, August 26.—Stirling, Ahrens & Co., said to be the largest sugar importing house in the United States, suspended payment this afternoon. Ahrens thinks the liabilities will amount to about $2,000,000, but if the assets are judiciously administered, the creditors can ultimately be paid dollar for dollar. He assigns as causes for the failure the general depression of business and the shrinkage in the value of coffee and sugar, of which the firm have large stocks. They have also large real estate, not at present available. Detailed statements of their affairs will be prepared as quickly as possible.

The debts are due to parties in this city and in Cuba almost exclusively. It is said the business of the firm footed up $40,000,000 per year. They were proprietors of two large sugar refineries, the Merchants and Chesapeake, and agents of two others, the Colvert and Maryland. The effect here of the failure remains to be developed.

Later.

It is now ascertained that the liabilities amount to $2,500,000, of which $1,000,000 is due in Baltimore to merchants, banks and private banking houses. The firm employed 350 men in their refineries and barrel factory. The immediate cause of the failure is said to be the shrinkage in molasses.

Street Railway War in Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, August 26.—There has been a war of words, and at times threats of violence made by the men at work laying the track of the High street extension of the Long Street Railroad, on High street to-day. The Long street men are endeavoring to head off an injunction by laying their track to-night, the enjoining party being the old High Street Company, who object to being forced to diverge from the centre of the street, which a recent ordinance requires them to do.

ALLEGHENY WATER AFFAIRS.

Meeting of the Committee of Councils Last Night.

A special meeting of the Water Committee of Allegheny Councils was held last evening, Mr. A. D. Smith presiding.

The chairman stated the object of the meeting to be to consider the propriety of puddling the western compartment of the water basin. He submitted an estimate of the cost of the work, as prepared by the City Engineer, which is $6,769.20. After some discussion Mr. Price moved that the contractor be directed to puddle the western compartment. Adopted.

The resolution for a water pipe on Freemont Alley was laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Wittmer, the Superintendent of the water works was directed to lay a new rising main from the old water works to the basin, and to lay it so that the mouth of the pipe would be above the basin. Carried.

The sub-committee, to whom was referred the bill of extras of A. Hartupee & Co. for the work at the new water works, reported adverse to the payment of the bill. Mr. Hartupee was present, and stated that he thought the bill should be paid, as it was for work done in repairing the engine after the accident to the valve chamber. The accident was not caused by any defect in his work, but in that of others and therefore he should not be held accountable for the accident. After the engine was completed, according to contract, the final payment of $10,000 was held back from him for nearly a year and he lost the interest on that sum for that time. He had done all his work according to the specifications and he thought the bill should be paid.

The committee then laid the bill over till the next meeting.

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 113⅛.

THE experiment of exporting peaches to England has been attempted. The "Ohio" took from Philadelphia yesterday twenty-four hundred crates.

A BARBAROUS phase of Ku-kluxism has reached Indiana. It is not, we trust, too much to expect that the authorities will arrest and the people punish the barbarous monsters referred to in our news dispatch of yesterday.

THE relation between whisky and murder are often amazingly distinct. Our news this morning mentions the case of a man, crazed with rum, who cut his child's throat. Does an article of this character deserve favorable consideration?

IT TURNS out,—very much as was expected,—that neither King nor Shoemaker will be tried on account of their alleged complicity in the Pacific Mail swindle. It is now said that Irwin is essential as a witness in the prosecution of these men, and he is "beyond the service of a judicial process." Thus another hitch and failure.

THE Pacific Mail Steamship Company seems to be ever unfortunate. The "City of Peking," the great vessel built for the company, is reported to be well-nigh worthless. She has made but one trip to China, and when there was so defective that no insurance could be had on her. On her return trip she was taken into the dry-dock, almost a perfect wreck. This is a bad showing.

TO ARGUE that Allen should not be elected seems very much like reasoning against the earth's revolving backward. Yet this argument is being employed, and has in it a large measure of force. It is claimed, and very truly, that were he elected, it would prompt the new and impressionable element, recently elected to Congress, to attempt to pass the most impracticable inflation measures. We fully realize this danger, but we do not have grave fears of the election of Allen.

THE New York World insists that ex-Governor Bigler shall be the candidate for the Democratic party for Governor of this State. It takes little stock in Ross and others, whereupon that sublimely virtuous journal, the Philadelphia Times, thinks that its circulation is running down, and it is sold out to the Cameron ring! What wonderful and beautiful logic runs through the taunts of many independent papers! Another journal disagrees with them—say as to the rings of Saturn—and forthwith it is decreasing in circulation and a creature of rings. Of all papers in the country, we know of none that use this argument with so bad a grace as the Times. It is enough, in illustrating this point, to say that it is edited by A. K. McClure. In reality, Bigler will be the most undesirable candidate the Democracy can put up.

OUR readers know how frequently our columns are enriched by contributions from the pen of Josiah Copley, Esq., a former editor of the GAZETTE. Mr. Copley is explaining the wonders and mysteries of the Rocky mountains, and from a remote southwestern part of Colorado writes us the letter which will be found in this day's GAZETTE. We advise our readers not to pass this letter by, by reason of its length. We agree with its author that it possesses more interest even than his other letters, his observations on electric photography are especially noteworthy, and should attract attention from masters of that science. Mr. Copley is a gentleman of large experience, a close observer, and entirely trustworthy for the integrity of his statements. He is, moreover, himself conversant with the applied sciences; his letters on the topographical and geological characteristics of our own immense western domain are, therefore, entitled to the highest consideration as well as for their intelligence as for their fidelity to truth.

THE Chicago Tribune and Journal are debating whether our Pittsburgh manufacturers are doing a paying or losing business. Says one: "As a matter of fact, the Pittsburgh manufacturer sells his iron in the Toronto or Montreal market for almost exactly the same price as he sells the same iron in the Pittsburgh market, so that he not only pays the duty, but also pays the cost of transportation to Toronto or Montreal as well. He, however, receives his pay in currency at Pittsburgh and in gold in Toronto or Montreal; but the difference between currency and gold is not sufficient to pay the freight, insurance, and duty. He must make concessions or he cannot sell at all." Says the other: "Unless this sharp competition between the English and American manufacturers induces each side to sell its iron below cost 15 per cent., neither party pays the Canadian duty, which is 15 per cent. If either competitor sells iron to the Canadians at cost, the Canadian purchasers necessarily pays the duty himself. What object the Pittsburgh manufacturer can have in selling iron in Canada at 15 per cent. loss we cannot comprehend." As the difference between currency and gold is over 13 per cent., the difficulty of the Tribune is not as great as it would make it appear.

IF PERTINACITY is a good thing, that portion of the press which has in band the task of howling at Delano are full of good things. The New York Herald carries this warfare so far as to call on the Cabinet to resign if the President will not dismiss Delano. We do not desire to shield him, if he shall be proved guilty, but a decent regard for the facts of the case as they stand should lead every intelligent person to see that the President is acting in a perfectly proper manner. Marsh's open letter to the President,—which was really an insult to him in that it was published in the papers without his knowledge or consent, contained the first specific charges on which the present howl is based. A commission was appointed to investigate these charges and that commission is still at work. It is understood that Messrs. Marsh, Welsh, and any others who have evidence will be summoned as witnesses. In the meantime Secretary Delano is accused, but not proven guilty of complicity in Indian frauds. To dismiss him, under the circumstances, from the Cabinet is to put the seal of condemnation upon him, before he is proven guilty. In the open discussion of the subject, Mr. Welsh has certainly been put in quite as bad a position as he has placed Secretary Delano in. We have yet to see if he will testify to his newspaper statements.

THE Philadelphians cannot be charged with keeping their light under a bushel so far as legislative appropriations are concerned. Last Winter they had an appropriation passed by the economical Democratic Reform House of Representatives, at Harrisburg, in behalf of a School of Design for Women, and for a Nautical School, both being really unconstitutional, and the Pennsylvania Medical School is now after a quarter of a million or so. As it has had such large benefactions that it cannot decently ask for more, we have a new project started. Says the Press of that city: "A great Industrial School should be established in Philadelphia and take its rise and name from the Centennial for the purpose of preserving and teaching, among other things, the industrial lessons of the great Exhibition. Such an institution would be an untold benefit not only to the poor of the city and all whose labor can be improved by skill, but to the city itself and all its interests. Some of the best-paying industries in the world are those which have been localized by cities intelligent enough to educate and direct the labor of unemployed classes. We hope to return to this subject again with more emphasis." We hope that Pittsburgh is entitled to the first appropriation that shall be made in this direction; and were our Central Board of Education to take appropriate action at an early date, it would result favorably. If we do not get an appropriation for this purpose next Winter, Philadelphia will.

OUR SLAUGHTERING SYSTEM.

Those who enter our well-kept markets to purchase their supply of meats and vegetables, rarely spend a thought, we judge, on the precautions necessary to insure a good and sound article of meats. Few have thought of the extreme difficulties that attend this work, and of the unnecessary danger constantly involved in the loose and hap-hazard slaughtering system in vogue in this city. Occasionally the press refers to a large amount of fruit, or meats, or other articles, condemned by the Inspector, and this is all of it. Yet the frequency and extent of these condemnations should teach that we run a great risk of having unsound meats imposed on us, and that there must be something wrong in the system which permits so much dangerous material to reach our markets, and be offered for sale. For example, the report of the Meat Inspector, Mr. Lindsay, for 1874, shows of beef, veal and mutton, 12,596 pounds condemned, besides eighty head of cattle, calves and sheep. The difficulty of preventing a large amount of diseased and unhealthy meat reaching the market, turns on the fact that we have over two hundred slaughter-houses in the city; and as the animals are killed in all of these at one time, the meat cannot be perfectly inspected. The Inspector has, also, the East Liberty, Fifth avenue, Market street, and South Side markets to look after, and it follows that much meat is sold before he can make his round. Hence, the amount reported as condemned, large as it is, does not represent the full supply of unhealthy meats that may be put on the market. Nothing more than this is needed to show that our system of slaughtering and selling meats involves serious danger to the health of the city.

Another evil and danger attending our present system of slaughtering animals is that of carting offall in an offensive condition through the streets, while the hides, hoofs and tallow are sources of nuisance, in many parts of the city. The slaughter houses are nuisances direct, and contribute to the propagation of disease, and the damage of private property. All else aside, it is asserted that in warm weather it is nearly impossible to so care for slaughtered animals in the common slaughter houses of our city, as to prepare them for market in the best condition. The average slaughter house is a hot, unprotected, and generally filthy place, and hence the animal heat of the slaughtered animal is not promptly removed. Its presence for ten or twelve hours generates putrefaction. In this condition the meat also tends to absorb the impure odors that abound, and is subject to the presence of flies. Without dwelling upon this offensive phase of the subject, it may be readily seen, from the hints above given, that it is simply impossible to bring meats to market, in their best condition, from such places.

The remedy for all this is in the abattoir system, so thoroughly tested in Europe, and so satisfactorily operated in a number of Eastern cities. Public abattoirs are built so they can be kept scrupulously clean, and cooling rooms are provided, in which the heat is speedily removed from the dead animal. In this way it is delivered to the salesman, and put on the market in the best possible condition. The Massachusetts State Board of Health give as the essentials and advantages of this system the following: "A pavement of stone, or some material impervious to blood; second, an abundant supply of water; third, complete drainage; fourth, vats for the rendering of fat and offal, on the spot, before putrefaction can attack them; fifth, the means of converting blood into blood-albumen. The Sanitary advantages of such a system would be—first, the removal of the present offensive odors; second, the removal of slaughter house pork from the markets; third, the ready inspection of meat, thus insuring the rejection of that which is unfit for food. The Economical advantages would be, first, diminished liability of having meat spoiled by exposure to the emanations from putrid pig pens; second, the value of the blood, which would be saved and utilized; third, the saving which always accompany order, system, the division of labor, the avoidance of transportation, and the doing of any business on a large scale; fourth, the greatly increased value of land in the vicinity of the present slaughter houses."

The principal advantage, however, of the abattoir is in the opportunity it affords for a thorough inspection of meats. As all the animals intended for sale must be slaughtered here, it follows that a thorough inspection at the abattoir answers for the entire city. Thus, impure or unwholesome meat cannot possibly find its way to market at all, and a serious danger is promptly and fully checked. In Paris, where the abattoir system is in its greatest perfection, beasts intended for food are taken directly to the abattoirs, where a special inspection, entrusted to competent men, is carried out. It is forbidden to slaughter in these public establishments animals suffering or supposed to be suffering from contagious diseases, and especially from malignant pustule or entozoic disease. Animals suffering from other diseases cannot be slaughtered without the consent of the inspectors of the slaughter-house, nor, in case of doubt, without the previous advice of a veterinary surgeon. Animals which happen to die in the abattoirs are treated in the same way. Lastly, the meat (whether of oxen, sheep, or pigs) must be inspected after the animals are slaughtered, and seized whenever it is found to be spoiled, tainted, or unfit for food. Thus, in a large city, all danger of having spoiled meats exposed for sale is promptly removed.

This city has all the natural advantages for such a system. We could have an abattoir located centrally to the general markets to be supplied. It ought to be self-supporting, and yet experience shows that the butchers and market-men could have animals slaughtered more cheaply there than in separate slaughter houses. In any event, it would unquestionably promote the well-being and health of the city. If the money expended on the Fifth avenue market-house had been employed in the erection of a suitable abattoir, it would have been better for the general health of the city. As it is, the frequent and large condemnations of meats during the present Summer point to the necessity for some arrangement, by means of which meats can be thoroughly inspected. The sooner steps are taken on this subject the better. At the East, cities of twenty-five thousand inhabitants have an abattoir, regarding it as essential to public health. This subject comes within the immediate province of the Board of Health, and we do not doubt the disposition of that active institution to do something to promote the health of the city.

THE steamship Ohio, which sailed from Philadelphia on Thursday, for Liverpool, took out 2,400 crates of Delaware peaches. The steerage of the ship has been turned into a refrigerator, and provided with fans for keeping up a constant current of cold air. This is the first venture of the kind.

GREAT excitement has been caused at Bear River, Nova Scotia, by the burning of barns belonging to a brother and cousin of the late Mrs. Robbins. The fire is supposed to be the work of her husband, who murdered her last Thursday night. He is supposed to be secreted in the woods. One hundred men are now searching for him.

TUESDAY evening three masked horsemen visited the residence of Wm. Mains, a farmer, living near New Haven, Ind. Mains was absent from home, and the masked men, who were under the influence of liquor, took possession of the house and appropriated such articles of value as they desired for their own use. They then set fire to the house and entirely destroyed it with its contents. Mrs. Mains fled from the house for fear she should be murdered.

THE final arrangements for the Soldiers' National Reunion at Caldwell, Ohio, September 1st, 2d and 3d, are completed. It is expected that Generals Sheridan, Logan and Negley, ex-Governors Curtin and Hayes, General Cockerill, of Missouri, Governor Allen, of Ohio, Hon. George H. Pendleton, Senators Thurman and Sherman, and Hon. George W. Morgan, will address the Camp. President Grant is confidently expected. A sword captured by General Cockerill from Col. Archer, at Tilton Station, Georgia, will be returned to its owner with impressive ceremonies. Many States have responded, pledging large delegations.

THE Memphis Wood Works, together with a large amount of lumber and valuable machinery, were totally consumed on Wednesday night. The stable belonging to the company, in which were a number of wagons and seven mules, was also burned. So intense was the heat that one of the steam fire engines was nearly lost, and was only saved by the other engines playing upon the men who extricated it, and in accomplishing this Captain Raja and one of his men were severely injured. The watchman on duty at the works saw two men hurriedly leave the grounds just before the fire. He fired upon them as they ran, from which it is believed the fire was the work of an incendiary. The total loss is about $27,000, on which there is $17,500 insurance—$2,000 each in the Globe, of Chicago, and the Amazon, of Cincinnati, and the remainder in local companies.

Banks and Depositors.

The Supreme Court of Vermont has recently given a decision on the question of the liability of national banks for special deposits, which the public will find it to their advantage to bear in mind, since it was then decided that such banks have no power to bind themselves or the corporators by accepting bonds, coin, or other valuable things upon special deposit, for safe keeping, and return upon demand; and that no recovery can be had against the bank for any such deposit left with the cashier and not returned on request. This is doubtless a startling decision to those who are not lawyers, and to not a few who are. Yet Chief Justice Redfield, in an elaborate note on the opinion delivered by the Court, fully indorses it. The facts of the case are, in brief, these:

Lucius L. Wiley deposited with S. M. Waite, cashier of the First National Bank of Brattleboro, $2,400 of 5-20's for safe keeping, and obtained a receipt therefor. This was in 1869. In 1871 the bonds were stolen. Wiley brought an action against the bank to recover the value of the bonds. The facts were proven as above. The defendant offered in evidence, but requested the court to hold as a matter of law, that under the act of Congress national banks could not be held liable for special deposits. The inferior court declined to hold as requested, and the case was certified to the Supreme Court, where the judgment was reversed. The higher court held that the transactions by which Wiley claimed that the bank had become the depository were wholly with the cashier, and that their effect to charge the bank rested entirely in that direction. But the taking of special deposits is no part of the business of banking. The only deposit made in National banks which the receipt of an officer of the bank could bind the bank for, are such deposits as are credited to the depositor, to be used by the bank as its own, and be drawn against by or paid to the depositor at his pleasure—not money, securities, or other property, to be specifically kept and redelivered, for the receiving of such deposits is in no sense necessary to the carrying on of the business of banking.

If the cashier placed the bonds in controversy in the vaults of the bank, he did not do so as the agent of the bank or of the stockholders, and could not bind them by so doing. If he was the plaintiff's agent in putting them there, they were as much at the plaintiff's risk as if placed there by the plaintiff himself.

Such are, in a few words, the grounds of the Court's decision, and they seem to be sufficient. It would be scarcely just that the stockholders of the bank should be made to suffer for an act of the cashier by which neither they nor the bank were in any way benefited.

Chief Justice Redfield, while he acknowledges the justice of the decision, and defends it, says that it is a new view of the question of the responsibility of banks for special deposits; since it expressly holds that all such undertakings are ultra vires. There are decisions which look the other way, but as high an authority as the ex-Chief Justice of Vermont says that he finds it impossible to defend them on the settled principles of law.

Special depositors in national and other banks will do well to ponder this decision.

Love and a Mule.

The Newark Evening Courier, a newspaper remarkable for its veracity, says of one of its citizens: He rose early and gulped down his morning cup of coffee, as if his life depended upon his haste. Then he rushed to the grand delivery window of the postoffice, and inquired for a letter. The clerk handed him a perfumed missive, directed in a fair round hand. He ripped open one end of the envelope with his lead pencil sharpener, and commenced to read as he crossed Broad street toward Centre Market. What to him were the country wagons, with their loads of beets and cabbages? He read: "As I sit by the open window and hear the waves thunder upon the shore——" There he stopped suddenly and tumbled into a basket of squashes, as if a thunderbolt had been launched at the seat of his 30-inch pantaloons. That was where it struck. "Hello, mister. Say, can't you keep away from that mewl?" sang out a bronzed agriculturist from Caldwell. "Help yourself to squash," yelled one of Lew Francis' students from the tonsorial chambers of the market building. He gathered up his girl's letter, dripping with black mud, surveyed the photograph of the mule's foot upon the base of his pantaloons, and limped disconsolately away. The course of true love never did run smooth.

Beecheriana.

Mr. Beecher spends his time at the White Mountain House between bowling, croquet playing, morning prayers, and preaching on Sunday. Here is an anecdote of himself, told by himself. "Once upon a time" a clergymen visited him, and insulted him and his wife in his own parlor. In an instant he (Mr. Beecher) arose, grasped the clergyman by the back of the neck, shoved him to the front door, and kicked him out of it. The man's face, as he unexpectedly found himself in Mr. Beecher's grasp, and his look of terror as he was about to be pitched down the front steps, were so ludicrous that, as Mr. Beecher returned to the parlor, his anger vanished, and the whole affair seemed so ludicrous, that he "rolled upon the floor like jelly, and laughed till he almost cried."—Exchange.

[Written for the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

THE OLD COUNTRY STORE.

When the long day is done,
And our work is galore,
At the set of the sun,
We all hie to the store,
To the Old Country Store,
To the postoffice store,
To the produce exchange of the country,
Which stands on the river's steep shore.

And a stogie we buy,
With our credit or cash,
A sweet calm to supply,
And to "settle our hash,"
As the rowdies remark when they kill a poor sinner,
Which these stogies half do for a fool or beginner.

When we go for our seats,
And its queer to descry
To what marvelous fits
We our corpus supply,
('Tis the loafer's own trick),
From the broad, big head of a hogshead,
To the end of a vertical stick.

And happy the King of a wash-board,
To lay on the top of a keg;
Thrice happy who seizes the arm chair,
Although it be lacking a leg.

So we sit and we gaze,
As the customers come
From their various ways,
Till it's all a great hum,
With each wishing most kindly his neighbor "Good Luck,"
As he rides in his wagon and carries his "truck."

Save those, who come cross
O'er the river, and, if
It's too deep for a "hoss,"
They must paddle a skiff,
And force the good water to bear them,
Although they can't bear to bear it.

But each makes his own trade,
And relates his own share
Of the gossip, that's made
But to make us all stare,
And he picks up his burden of trinkets,
When disburdened his mind of its care.

So in turn they disperse,
And in turn take their place
If without a long purse,
They must have a long face,
Which the most cannot get,
Tho' they gladly would now run their faces
In order to run into debt.

But the store will trust these,
Though lad, who comes in
And feels ill at his ease,
Looking milky and meek
As he presses his chin,
For the lack of men's "cheek,"
'Gainst the counter, and he asks for his candy
With the sense of committing a sin.

His good cents must show,
And be humble and quick,
If he wishes to go
With his peppermint stick,
Gets no credit at all
For the great things take care of themselves, you know,
And we must take care of the small.

So the throngs enter still,
Tho' with noises they fill
The Exchange, and seem coming forever;
And we hear the quaint news, as they come and they go,
From the bottom above, and the bottom below,
And the bottom across the river.

And they all seem to wish,
As each wild story sings,
With the flavor of "fish,"
And of eagles the wings;
Ere the orator goes to the bottom,
He'll go to the bottom of things.

But perchance an old cuss,
Who is up to the snuff,
And seen many a "muss,"
And took part in enough
To give him a fame and a fortune
As a brave and a gentleman rough,

Darts in at the door,
And spurts out a great joke,
With a flood on the floor,
Till the meeting is broke,
And all break in a roar,
In this Liberty Hall of the freeman,
Which stands on the rivers steep shore.

When we listen with awe
To his boistrous guffaw,
And his every action follow,
As he tells his tales
On a keg of nails,
That are often as hard to swallow.

For instance he says,
In his wonderful ways,
He saw a man driving cattle,
That wouldn't go long,
Except to go wrong,
So he pitched in and had a pitched battle.

For that devilish fool
Tried a cow's tail to pull,
Till the chivalrous bull
Tossed up for the choice of sides,
And the man, understand,
Got the upperhand,
As into the air he glides;

And from nine until noon
Did this lovable loon
Fly up to the moon,
For the sake of that baulky "Sookie;"
And he swore on "the book,"
That all since he was born,
'Twas the first time he took
To the "taking a horn,"
And the first time he ever played "hookie."
Which Good Templars may doubt
When they hear that this "lout"
Came so near to the horn of the moon.
But at last he came down,
On his feet or his crown,
I forget, but it wasn't too soon.

For a boat passed by,
As he shot from the sky,
And he smashed right through to her bottom.
And the steamer sunk,
As he rose and slunk,
To the shore to hunt his "bosses."
But the end of my tale is very sad,
For the river men, "dod rot 'em,"
Did auction off each ox he had
To pay for their heavy losses.

Then the man he cussed, and the bull he roared,
But no use, he turned to his home all gored,
With his body and clothes all gory.
So, you think, as you hear the abundant crop
Of news, that you sit in a barber shop,
While you hear the barberous story.

But a woman will come,
And each leaps from his chair,
With a deference some,
And some more with a scare,
As they step to the farthest corner,
And greet the fair thing with a stare.

But at last she departs,
And there's silence no more,
As again the romp starts
In the Old Country Store,
Where the stories you hear,
And the tales that you tell,
To the fancy are dear,
And invention as well,
In the Old Country Store,
Which, tho' having one floor,
Is a house of a hundred stories,
That lie on the river's steep shore.

Now a fellow arrives,
By the river come down,
Who can tell how it thrives
With the people in town,
And who not only can, but will do it
For the sake of applause and renown.

So in confident tones
He relates all he owns,
And the crowd keeps silence before
This man of renown,
For the last man in town
Is the first man here in the store.

But its nine by the chime
Of the clock on the shelf;
The Lord knows the true time,
And he keeps it himself,
For we set by the sun in the morning,
And test by its set in the eve;
But the keeper says "Hum,"
And we answer "Ah! Well!"
With a yawn, and say "Come,
Let us go where we dwell."
So we all hustle up in a hurry,
And walk to the threshold and leave.

And our ways home we thread
Like a needle as straight,
While each holds in his head
A most solemn debate,
As he silently broods
As to which he would choose
To receive the "new goods,"
Or to hear the "good news"

What are sold
And are told
In the Old Country Store,
What are bought
And are taught
In the Post Office Store,
In the Gossip Exchange of the country,
Which stands on the river's steep shore.

J. W. DAVIS.

Lincoln and Johnson.

The best and clearest, as well as the most just estimate and comparison of the characters respectively of Lincoln and Johnson ever furnished by any foreign paper, is the following, from the London Examiner: "Mr. Johnson has often been compared with President Lincoln. The two were, indeed, somewhat alike in the early circumstances of their lives, in the poverty that clung around their childhood, and the surprising energy and patience with which they raised themselves to influence and power. They were alike, too, be it said to the credit of both, in personal integrity; in their absolute superiority to any of the more sordid considerations with which men look to high office and the dispensing of patronage. But in other respects there was little resemblance—at least as little as there is between a Newfoundland dog and a bull-dog. Lincoln was full of softness and sweetness, of kindly tender friendship and affections, of sympathy and pity. Johnson's nature was rugged and hard, as his style of speaking was rough and violent. There was a vein of curious and genuine eloquence in Lincoln which was never found in the hammer-and-tongs addresses of Johnson. Lincoln's was, in fact, a character of great variety, while Johnson's was only strong, self-sufficing, down-right and "dour." Perhaps it might be said more concisely that Lincoln was a man of genius, and Johnson a bold, clever and persevering politician. The latter had one peculiarity in his history, however, which, so far as we can remember at present, is unique among the American statesmen of our time. His public life did not conclude with his tenure of office. He retired, but only to come forward again. He did not sink away into obscurity, but only just before his death gave some promise of a new 'departure' and a fresh political career."

"Where Are We Now?"

The old adage, "save us from our friends," seems to be particularly appropriate to those scientists who are forever prophesying evil. If we were to believe all the theories and speculations dinned in our ears from time to time we should inevitably come to the conclusion that the earth was shortly about to wither up like a scroll and tumble into the sun, that the second advent was upon us, with a general transmogrification of all things, or failing these remarkable phenomena, that our infants were dying at a rate which threatened within a very short period to depopulate the country, that our maidens were gradually but assuredly assuming the form of kangaroos, and last, but not least, that our men were returning to the conformation and assuming the physical and mental peculiarities of the aboriginal savage. The last theory has many advocates, among others Dr. Toner, of Washington, and Professor Berthoud, the French anthropologist. This latter gentleman seriously infers from the long fingers of the gloves which the Parisian glovers manufacture expressly for the American market that the Anglo-American race is rapidly becoming Indianized. Another savan contends that we already present characteristics similar to those of the Iroquois—parchment-like skin, round or pointed scull, dark hair, long neck, sunken eyes, wild and piercing eye. Still another American anthropologist advocates these views. He points out that we share with the Indians their predilection for dark dwellings, as well as their taste for loud colors, and that in place of the proverbial phlegm of the Briton, we are rapidly becoming addicted to nervous unrest and feverish activity.

Colonel Baker in Prison.

Colonel Baker, of English railway infamy, is not so badly off in his new sphere as people would naturally suppose. In fact, languishing in a British dungeon, when one has any money at command, seems to be no worse than taking a holiday at Blackwell's island, Sing-Sing, Joliet, or any other fashionable prison in the United States.

Baker occupies a superior cell. He is allowed to receive letters, and to entertain his friends upon certain visiting days. He can have what he likes in the way of food, and can order his own wines. He may pay for the services of other people in all those duties usually performed by prisoners after conviction. He is allowed certain hours for recreation, but is not compelled to "recreate" with other prisoners. He is permitted, like the debtors, to pass his time out of doors, and is not subjected to the hourly supervision of the warders. He must be in his bedroom at regulation hours, though he is not compelled to go to bed until he chooses. Altogether, Baker has rather a good time of it. There is many a hard-working fellow who wouldn't at all object to stand in Baker's shoes; indeed, we should not be the least degree surprised to learn that cases of kissing, and the hugging of unprotected females in first-class railway carriages, had become as common in England as wife-beating or the purloining of pocket handkerchiefs.

Grasshoppers in Roumania.

Our own country is not alone in its affliction from the grasshopper plague. A Roumanian correspondent of the London Times, writing from Galatz on the 1st of August, describes a swarm of locusts which he had witnessed that day that was from three to four miles wide, fifteen miles long, and was about five hours in passing. The correspondent says: "All over this part of the country lately all the horses in the village have been kept saddled, and the instant the locusts are reported in the neighborhood all the people turn out and gallop after them, and raise an awful din with pots and pans, and so on, to prevent them from alighting. If once the flock alight, it is all up; but by this means they manage to frighten them from alighting, and cause them to move on elsewhere." This is a remedy for grasshoppers our Western farmers have never tried.

Latest Advices Concerning Money and Stock Matters.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, August 27, 1875.

Pittsburgh was slow to feel the force of the panic, and is slow to receive the inspiration of recovery. At the East and West, the press reports a more active and hopeful feeling; but here, while we have occasional spurts of activity, there is no real or decided improvement. The supply of funds at the banks has reduced some, probably in sympathy with the general movement West of currency for the handling of the crops. The banks, however, have an abundance of funds for all comers, and with acceptable paper there is no difficulty in raising a reasonable sum of money. Second class paper begins to find its way liberally to the street, and is taken to some extent, but the banks are shy of it.

Reports that come to us from the country are uniformly to the effect that the people there have an unusually good year. The pressure of the times is not felt there as in the cities. Crops are of average quantity and quality, and prices good. In the wheat growing regions of the West and Northwest the product is above the general average, and prices also rate quite high.

Business in every branch of trade and commerce at Quebec has so far this season been on a much more limited scale as compared with former years. Some temporary suspensions of a few of the leading lumber mill owners and timber merchants have taken place with heavy liabilities, chiefly confined to the banks, by whose assistance the business of some of them will be enabled to go on to a limited extent, affording time for the disposal and realization of stocks which, together with the valuable property, will eventually liquidate to a great extent all claims. The suspension of some manufacturing establishments in the vicinity of Quebec will, for a time, throw many workmen out of employment. They expect, however, to resume operations again soon, and in the meantime, the disposal of the large stocks on hand will do much toward relieving the present embarrassment. The large falling off in the arrivals of shipping from Europe also tends to diminish the amount of business and the circulation of money, by means of their disbursements, &c., among all classes of the community. These combined causes account in a great measure for the past and present depression of the business of that city, and through that other portions of the Dominion; but the anticipated improvement of the fall trade, together with the prospect of an abundant harvest, affords some encouragement for the future.

Gold opened at 113¾, advanced to 113⅞ and closed at 113¾. The rates paid for borrowing were 1-32 and 1-64 per diem, and 7, 6, 3, 1 and 2 per cent. per annum. At the close loans were made flat. Government bonds closed firm. Railroad bonds were firm in late dealings. Union Pacific firsts rose to 102¾. Land grants were in demand at 101, with none offered under 101½. No offerings of Union Pacific sinking funds were made below 98. One lot of $45,000 Hannibal & St. Joseph convertible brought 85. Central Pacifics sold at 102¾, Western Pacifics at 93, and Erie 5th at 93½. In State bonds Tennessees were firmer this afternoon. Old sold at 53, against 51½ at the first board, and closed at 51⅞. The new series, which declined to 50½, closed at 53 asked, without any bid.

The stock market, which was quiet and lower in the forenoon, closed active and still lower, except Erie, which remained steady. Panama fell off from 141 to 140, Pacific Mail from 42 to 41⅝, preferred from 57¼ to 56½, St. Paul from 38 to 37¾, preferred from 64 to 63¾, Ohios from 19½ to 18¾, Lake Shore from 61¾ to 61⅛, and Union Pacific from 73¼ to 72¾. At the final close there was a fractional recovery in St. Paul and Ohios. Fort Wayne was strong, and advanced to 101.

The transactions on the Stock Exchange aggregated 84,725 shares, of which 7,700 were Erie, 14,300 Lake Shore, 11,500 Northwestern common, 2,600 preferred, 19,100 Pacific Mail, 5,600 Ohios, and 15,200 Western Union.

LONDON, August 26—3 P. M.—The bullion in the Bank of England decreased £66,000 the past week. The proportion of bank reserve to liabilities is 55¼ per cent. There was a much better feeling in the market at the opening of business than at the close yesterday. The changes in prices are unimportant, except in one or two instances. United States Government bonds are steady. Erie recovered from the depression yesterday and advanced ½ per cent., just the amount of the decline. The rise of 1 per cent. in New York Central was lost this morning. Speculative shares have been active, and these fluctuations of 1 per cent. at a time are undoubtedly the result of a speculative movement. Union Pacific land grants declined 1 per cent. Pennsylvania Railroad advanced ½ per cent., and are in fair demand. Contrary to general expectation, the Directors of the Bank of England announced the rate of discount unchanged.

LONDON, August 26—5 P. M.—Erie, 14¾; do preferred, 30.

PARIS, August 26.—Rentes 66f 45c. The specie in the Bank of France increased 7,845,000 francs during the past week.

Condition of the Markets at Home and Abroad.

DAILY REPORT OF PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, August 26, 1875.

There is nothing particularly important to notice in connection with the leading markets; business, as a rule, is dull and unsatisfactory, more so than usual at this season of the year, although it is about all that can be expected. The movement in Grain, Flour, Groceries, Provisions, as well as produce generally, is on a limited scale, as the demand is confined almost entirely to supplying immediate wants, and it looks as if this policy of carrying light stocks would be pretty closely adhered to for some time to come.

BEANS—In light supply, but there is little or no demand; prime mediums quoted in a small way at $2,10a2,15 per bushel.

BUTTER—Commission men are nearly all busily engaged in the fruit and green stuff trade, hence there is not as much attention given to Butter as there was some few days ago. The market is less active, the demand has fallen off considerably, and rates are barely maintained; prime to choice solid packed quotable at 22a24c; medium to good, 18a20; common, 12a15. A New York exchange, of Wednesday, reports that market as follows: With moderate supplies the market has kept pretty steady for the fine and good table grades of State or Western. Really fancy State may be quoted above last week—at least sellers say they can obtain top rates more readily. The under grades of Western are very dull; buyers are looking at them, but their bids are below the limits of holders. The western stock is largely owned by western shippers, who seem to have faith in the future, while some of our New York owners have bought at a price which will not let them out at the present bids of buyers. The offers are 16a18c for a style of parcels that are held at 20a22c. The outlook is not rosy for many of these stored lots, as every day deteriorates their condition. Baking grades of Western are scarce, and would sell readily at 14a15.

BROOM CORN—Continues firm, and the supply in this market is light. A Chicago paper, of Wednesday, says:—The belief that the crop in some sections has been seriously injured serves to give the market a firmer tone, and despite the fact that the demand is almost wholly restricted to small lots for immediate use, former prices are firmly maintained. We quote: Good to choice hurl, 12 1-2a13 1-2c; brush that will work itself into a choice hurl broom, 11 1-2a13; fair to good do., 10 1-2a11; inferior brush, 8 1-2a9 1-2; crooked, 6 1-2a8c.

BROOMS—"Union Factory" Brooms:—No. 2 common, $2,50; Ns. 3 hurl, $2,75; No. 4 hurl, $3,25; No. 5 hurl, $3,50; No. 6 hurl, $3,75; No. 3 carpet, $4; No. 4 carpet, $4,25; No. 5 carpet, $4,50; Fancy parlor, $4,25a4,50. Steamboat brooms, $3,50a4,50; Whisks, plain, $1,25a1,50; fancy whisks, $1,50a2; toy brooms, $1,25a1,75.

CHEESE—Trade continues rather quiet, but the receipts continue light, and prices are still maintained. We continue to quote prime Ohio Factory, in a jobbing way, at 11a11½c. New York advices, under date of Wednesday, report as follows:—The market has run quietly during the week, and there has been no special variation in prices. Very few sales reach 11 1-2c; sellers endeavor to avoid a surplus, and will favor shippers when large lines are in question. Some good Allegheny sold to-day at 11¼c, and plenty of full stock; useful cheese is obtainable at 10½.

EGGS—The market continues very dull, there is scarcely enough doing to establish quotations; the receipts continue light, and the most of the stock in this market is stale; strictly fresh, guaranteed as such, quotable at 14a15; old stock can scarcely be sold at any price.

FRUITS—There is no abatement in the demand for Peaches, and the advance noted in our last report is still maintained; $1,50a2 per box, according to quality and condition; in a small way choice fruit was selling to-day at $2,25a2,50. Plums, $2,50a3,50 per box. Blackberries $1,50 per pail. Apples in light supply and firm at $3a4 per bbl. Water Melons 10a20c each.

FLOUR—There is a fair business doing in a jobbing way, although the demand is mainly to supply immediate wants; neither retailers nor bakers, so far as we can learn, are disposed to stock up largely; we continue to quote at $7,25a7,50 for good to choice brands of old winter and spring wheat.

GROCERIES—The Grocery trade continues pretty much as it has been for some time past; business is only fair, and it is complained that the margin for profit is small; also that collections in the city as well as the mining districts are not satisfactory. In regard to values there have been no changes since the date of our last report.

GRAIN—The receipts of Wheat continue very light, and with considerable inquiry and little or none offering, the market is firm at $1,50a1,55 for old red winter; new crop is quoted at $1,40a1,45; as yet there has been scarcely any of the latter on this market. While wheat is considered low here at quotations, as compared with the west, it is high enough when the product is taken into consideration. The arrivals of Oats continue liberal, but there is no accumulation as yet of any consequence, for the reason that the supply, both in the hands of retailers and feeders, was almost exhausted; we continue to quote new, on spot, at 48a50c for prime. There is little or no movement in Corn and while the supply is small it is equal to the demand; quotable at 82a83c for shelled and 83a85 for ear. Rye is quoted nominally at $1.

HAY—New crop was sold from country wagons in Allegheny to-day at $14a18 per ton; new baled quoted, on track, at $20a23; new oat straw, from country wagons, $10a14 per ton.

POTATOES—The market continues overstocked, and is very dull, so much so that it is difficult to give quotations; indeed, it is almost impossible to dispose off a carload lot at any price; we quote nominally at 30a40c per bushel. Sweet Potatoes quoted at $4,50a5,50 per bbl., the outside figure for prime Jerseys.

PROVISIONS—We have to report a continued firm market, and the indications at the present writing warrant the prediction that there will be a still further advance in prices before long, especially as regards sugar-cured meats, the stock of which is rapidly being reduced.

Chicago Lumber Market.

Freights are quiet and nominally unchanged. The market for lumber was moderately active, and a fair proportion of the 30 cargoes on sale found buyers. There were no changes of any importance to note in values, and the current quotations for joists and scantling were $8a8,25, while strips and boards may be quoted at $8a14 for common to choice; shingles, $2,10a2,60; lath, $1,50; posts, $8a14; pickets, $7a8, closing steady.

PITTSBURGH LIVE STOCK MARKET.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, August 26, 1875.

ARRIVALS.

Following were the arrivals of live stock at the Pittsburgh Central Stock Yards for the past five days, and, to afford a comparison, we append those of the corresponding time last week also:

	Cattle. Through.	Cattle. Local.	Hogs.	Sheep.
Sunday	21 cars	35 cars	22 cars	16 cars
Monday	45 "	57 "	17 "	28 "

CATTLE.

The receipts continue light, and while there will probably be an increase in the arrivals of through stock during the balance of the week, as there usually is during the latter part of the week, it is not likely that the receipts of local stock will amount to much during the time in question. The arrivals of local stock, as will be seen, show a falling off of 83 cars, as compared with the corresponding time last week, and the increase of through consignments was only five cars. The sales foot up 2,395 head, against 3,904 same time last week, showing a falling off of 1,609 head. Philadelphia buyers bought 55 cars; New York, 25 cars, and country dealers and butchers, 71 cars.

The market was the best the selling interest have had for some time, and it was generally unexpected; trade was very unsatisfactory last week, and indeed, we might say for several weeks, so much so that operators generally were discouraged, and had but little hope of an early improvement, especially as regarded common stock, of which there had been an over-supply. However, with an average demand and a diminished supply, together with more favorable advices from the east, the market opened up strong and sellers had no difficulty in putting up prices, and even at the advance the supply was unequal to the demand. During the 24 hours ending at noon to-day there were but 194 head sold, whereas ordinarily the sales during the time in question range from 600 to 1,200 and 1,500; the yards were cleared up at noon yesterday, and the arrivals since then were light, but 15 cars, and they were picked up just about as fast as they were unloaded out of the cars. The advance was quoted at from ¼ to 1-2 a cent per lb; prices were forced up more on fair to good steers, ranging from 900 to 1,100, than any other kind, and for this there are various reasons. One is, the kind in question had been forced down lower than any other description, and then, in addition to a very limited supply, the demand was chiefly for cattle of this character. Of strictly choice beeves there were none on sale; there were several bunches sold at from 6¾a7, and one at 7,15, and there is no doubt but 7,25 could have been realized for something extra, although but few could have been sold, as shippers do not want many of this class. Stockers were in fair demand and sold readily, but scalawag stock, including grass bulls, old cows and stags, were hard to sell.

QUOTATIONS.

Prime 1,400a1,500 steers	6,50a7,25
Extra 1,200a1,300 steers	6,12a6.50
Good 1,100a1,200 steers	5,50a5,75

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The run of this class of stock was much larger than that of last week, but with an increased demand, contrary to general expectation, prices, especially for the best grades, were fully maintained. The supply last week was a very light one, and a sharp advance was established; operators generally predicted that, in the event of increased receipts, the market would react; but, as already stated, we have had about one-third more sheep, yet no decline, as the increased demand was sufficient to absorb the increased supply. The offerings, as a rule, were rather common in point of quality, hence the better grades sold more readily and at better prices relatively than the common kinds, and the indications are that this will continue for some time to come.

QUOTATIONS.

Extra 95a100 lbs	5,25a5,50
Good 85a90 lbs	4,75a5,00
Fair 75a80 lbs	4,25a4,50
Common 70a75 lbs	3,25a3,75
Lambs	5,00a5,50
Stock Ewes, per head	$1,50a2,50

Henry Erisman reports having bought some 30 car loads, averaging from 70 to 105 lbs., at prices ranging from 4 to 5¾c, and he quotes extra 100a110 lb. sheep at 5¼a5¾c.

HOGS.

The receipts continue light, and with a very limited supply, the market for corn-fed hogs is stiffening up and prices are higher, nothwithstanding the demand is light, unusually so, for this particular time. There is not much over one-half the number of hogs selling here that there usually is at this season of the year, and it is because prices are too high, the butcher or wholesale slaughterer cannot more than get his money out of the meat and lard, if that. We do not quote prime Philadelphia hogs above 8¾c, yet there was a load sold to-day at 8.80, and we heard a buyer say that he would pay 9c, but a few cars would be sufficient to supply the demand, and with anything above this, prices would soon go back. Grass hogs very dull.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, August 26, 1875.

Trade was again quiet to-day, although the market was considerably firmer, both for the raw article and the product, especially the former; operators, however, continue to complain that business is exceedingly unsatisfactory, and what is still worse, there is not much prospect of an early improvement. Crude was quoted at 92 1-2 for Conduit certificates, and $1,17 1-2c for immediate shipment, at Parker. Refined quoted at 10⅞a11 for Philadelphia and Baltimore delivery, and 11⅛ for New York; 8¾c on Penna. cars here, and 8⅞a9c on Connellsville cars, a slight improvement, as compared with yesterday.

There is a fair business in Oil Barrels, but no change in prices; quoted at $1,15a1,25 for countries; city make, $1,35a1,40.

THE WOOL TRADE.

New York.

The market since our last has exhibited about the same symptoms of steadiness as previously reported. There is no material change to be noted either in values or tendency. Operators are showing an increased confidence for investment in the staple, and a better business is anticipated. California Wools are in fair request at unchanged prices. Texas Wools rule about steady. Fleeces have met with a better inquiry at our quotations. Foreign Wools are dull, and prices favor the buyer. Carpet Wools meet with a good demand at firm prices. Pulled Wools move freely at unchanged prices. In the woolen goods market there is a slight improvement noticeable, but prices favor the buyer. The sales embrace 25,000 lb. Spring California, private terms; 2,600 lb. Unwashed W. V. Combing, 45c; 3,000 lb. Medium Eastern Texas, 35c; 12,000 lb. X Ohio Fleeces, 46½; 20,000 lb. Medium do, 49c; 15 bags Sherlings, 5 bags Lambs, 2 bags Black, private terms; 160 bales Spring California, private terms.

PHILADELPHIA.

Wool is quiet. Prices of manufactured goods rule low and unremunerative, and there is a general unwillingness to purchase except from hand to mouth. The price of fine wool has now declined to a point that has not been reached for many years, and it is beginning to attract the attention of outside speculators. If there was any demand for goods manufacturers would not hesitate to lay in, paying present rates, but, as the situation is discouraging, any price is considered high. Combing wools, unwashed and medium fleeces have met a fair inquiry—other kinds are flat. Sales of 400,000 lbs. at the following prices: Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia fleece, XX and above, 45a47; N, 45a47; ½ blood, 50a51; ¼ blood, 46a48: combing—fine unwashed, 30a31; medium unwashed, 36a37; washed fleece. 62a65; unwashed fleece, 40a43. New York, Michigan and Wisconsin—XX and above, 44a45; X, 44a45; ½ blood, 48a50.

SEVENTY-FIVE puddlers went to Louisville on the Fannie Tatum, where they are engaged to work in a rolling mill.

THE John F. Tolle left New Orleans for St. Louis last Saturday with three hundred hogsheads of sugar, and three hundred tons of miscellaneous freight.

THE John L. Rhoads, from St. Louis, is due here to-day; the Wild Duck is also en route, but she will not be able to get up until there is more water.

THE W. H. HARRISON arrived from Wheeling with a barge of ore and returned in the afternoon, taking with her Capt. Sweeney's new boat, which is to be completed at that point.

CAPT. A. J. BEARS, an old steamboat clerk, but who for several years past has been engaged in railroading, part of the time as mail agent on the Fort Wayne Road between here and Crestline, has been appointed agent of the Woodland Fire Brick Company.

SAM. BARR, an old and well known steamboat clerk, and who came out on the Great Republic with Capt. W. B. Donaldson, is clerking at the transfer depot of the Penna. R. R. Co. Capt. Rees Rees and Mr. Blood, both old steamboatmen, are also engaged at the same place.

CAPT. JOHN GORDON, of the Lioness No. 2, has been called home from his boat by sickness in his family, two of his children being down with the scarlet fever. They were a little better yesterday, and if they should continue to improve the Captain will return to his boat in a day or two. He is engaged in towing coal from Cairo to St. Louis, for Brown & Co., who have a contract with the St. Louis Company, for about a million and a half bushels of coal.

A ST. LOUIS dispatch under date of Tuesday says:—The Norton and Fearless leave for the Ohio river in the morning, each taking five barges of ore. Captain Frank J. Oakes, of the Crawford House, was a visitor on 'Change to-day, and was warmly greeted by his numerous friends here. The Captain returns to Cincinnati in a day or two. Commodore John A. Scudder replied to the petition of the merchants on 'Change to-day, who requested him to run his boats through to New Orleans, thanking them for the compliment, but declining to comply with the request, giving as a reason that it would require an outlay for additional tonnage that he did not think wise at this time to make it. Commodore Kountz is still here. Clear and cool.

Persons leaving the city for the summer can have the DAILY GAZETTE sent to them by mail, by leaving their orders at the counting-room.

Serious Accident.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon a large sledge hammer which was lying upon one of the joists of the lower floor of the Exposition building on South avenue, Allegheny, was accidentally knocked off, and fell upon the head of a German, named John Schloop, who was standing beneath, inflicting a large and severe wound. He was assisted to the office of Dr. Bachop, where the wound was dressed.

The Western University.

It will be observed by the advertisement of the Western University, in another column, that it will soon commence its Fall term. The University has become a noble institution—one which bears many strong resemblances to the older and richer endowed colleges of the country. It now, in respect of its seventeen Professors, their high attainments, their great success as educators, the comprehensive curriculum, and the nearly three hundred students, is a great public blessing creditable alike to its Trustees and Faculty.

The Industrial Exposition.

The work of erecting the Industrial Exposition building is progressing very rapidly. Three large pile drivers are now at work, and it is expected that the last of the piles will be driven to its place by next Tuesday evening. A large force of carpenters and other workmen are erecting the superstructure as rapidly as the piles are placed in position. Another steam engine was brought into requisition yesterday, for the purpose of hoisting the timbers for the roof. Great interest is manifested in the progress of the work, as there are large numbers of persons going around that way daily to see how it is getting along.

New School Building.

The new school building in process of erection in the First ward, Allegheny, for more than a year past, is now almost finished. The design of the building is a very good one, the rooms being all of good size, and well lighted, while the hall and stairways are large. The building is fitted up with all modern conveniences, and it will be one of the most comfortable and convenient school houses in the city. The exterior of the building is very handsome. The School Board will probably take the building off the contractor's hands within the next two weeks, and it will be thrown open for the admission of school children during the first or second week in September.

Printing Contracts Awarded.

The Printing Committee met last night, and several bills for printing were approved and ordered to be paid. Bids for printing 36,000 blanks for property returns for the Board of Revision, and 1,000 postal cards were opened, as follows: Revision blanks—Stevenson & Foster, $111.70; T. F. Best & Co., $235; A. Mathias, $185; James Pope & Co., $181.25; and the Herald Printing Co., $234. Postal cards—Stevenson & Foster, $12; T. F. Best & Co., $11.75; A. Mathias, $13; James Pope & Co., $12.75. The Herald Co. included in their bid for Revision blanks the printing of postal cards also. The contract for both kind of blanks was awarded to Stevenson & Foster. Messrs. Froelich and Smith were appointed, in connection with the chairman, to award the contract for police rolls and Mayor's office reports. The bids for printing them have already been received, but they are locked up in the Controller's safe and he has gone to Philadelphia with the keys, which is the reason why the contract was not let last night.

BURGLARIZED.

Robbery of Dr. Fundenburg's Residence.

Dr. W. F. Fundenburg returned on Tuesday from his summer tour, and upon making an examination of his residence, on Sixth avenue, between Smithfield and Wood streets, he found that it had been visited by thieves during his absence, who searched it from cellar to garret and stole about $400 worth of property. They took a number of silk handkerchiefs and new kid gloves, a gold watch, a pair of shirt studs, several little tin boxes of money belonging to the children, a bag of old and rare coins which the Doctor had been collecting since his boyhood, and a number of other things. The only silverware that had been left in the house the robbers missed. They neglected to break open that part of the sideboard containing it.

CONCERNING THE CONSTABULARY.

The Price Demanded by a Constable to Keep Items From the Reporters—How Sales Are Managed by Some.

It is well known that some of the ward constables in this city have no consciences at all, and that they will strain the law to a greater extent than is permissible in order to make money. In many cases advantage is taken by them of the ignorance of the law which prevails among the poorer classes to commit depredations, that is about as mild a term as can be employed, which should send them to prison forthwith, but they are generally shrewd enough to cover their tracks so well as to avoid detection. However, the particular case under consideration is more of the character of a bare-faced swindle than anything else. One day last week a gentleman from one of the neighboring counties, with whom the writer is very well acquainted, came to the city and transacted some business. Before it was completed the person with whom he was dealing got the impression that he was being made the victim of false representations and he entered suit against the ruralist, who was arrested and gave bail, but mutual explanations developed the fact that everything was fair and open and that the prosecutor, in instituting proceedings, had done so under a misapprehension of the circumstances of the case. The affair was amicably settled, and the accused, who is well known in the city, desiring to keep from the public the fact of his arrest on a criminal charge, particularly when it was without a basis, requested that the newspapers should not be allowed to get it. The constable who took him into custody, and who appears to be pretty much "on the make," had the ineffable cheek to offer to keep the affair from publication, provided the palm of his hand was crossed with a five dollar bill. The gentleman promptly and wisely declined to submit to any such imposition. A good many constables believe, and we have heard of policemen who were advocates of the same, that there is nothing like plucking a fat bird when they catch one, but they sometimes chance across old birds, as in the present instance, that are not to be caught with chaff. Such a method of making a living is not only reprehensible but dishonorable. There is not a reporter in the city of Pittsburgh, the writer believes, who could be purchased to keep an item from publicity if it deserved the circulation which the press would give it, nor one who would wilfully publish a paragraph knowing that it would injure an innocent party or parties and that it was based upon a misconception of facts. The influence which all the constables in Allegheny county could wield would not suffice for the sequestration of the particulars of a transaction which was really deserving of publicity. Several weeks ago the writer was placed in possession of the facts appertaining to a constable's sale of the property of a man residing in Temperanceville. His property was appraised, the amount exempted by law was set aside, and the remainder sold to satisfy an execution which the constable had. A few days after another constable made a levy and had the necessary amount of property exempted, but was very careful to sell enough to meet his claim. A third constable performed, a short time subsequent, the same operation that the second did, until finally the poor man had in his house only a few dishes, a stove, bedstead, and a small number of other articles, yet they had been appraised by the last constable at three hundred dollars. There is neither law nor justice in such constables' sales, and the spirit of the nineteenth century will not sanction them.

ACTION TO RECOVER INSURANCE MONEY.

In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, Miss Christina Ruth brought suit against the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company to recover the amount of insurance on her husband's life, he having taken out a policy in the defendant company some time before his death. It is set forth that the policy was issued on the 29th of December, 1869, for the sum of $1,500 in consideration of the annual premium of $63.90. Mr. Ruth died Feb. 2, 1875, and the plaintiff, in her petition, avers that due proofs were immediately thereafter prepared under the direction of the agent of the company, and forwarded to their office in New York. The company replied, alleging discrepancies between the said proofs and the application for the insurance, on file in the office of the company. Further proofs were then sent on to which there has been no answer received. The complainant further says that she has been informed and believes that the company sent a special agent from New York to investigate the facts in connection with the death of her husband, and that she has reason to believe he was satisfied that the statements made were true, which led him to state, as she has been told, that the money would be forthcoming.

COURT BREVITIES.

George Lapper, a South Side shoe dealer was arrested yesterday on a bench warrant which had been granted by Judge Collier. The application for the warrant was made by Messrs. Joseph H. Boreland and Gill & Bro., who thought Mr. Lapper was trying to dispose of his goods with a view to defraud his creditors. He will be held to await the action of Court.

Reports of Assignees in bankruptcy, appointed by the United States District Court, are coming in very slowly. There is a heavy penalty for such neglect, in case an interested party sees fit to bring the matter to an issue.

Frank M. Eastman was admitted as a citizen of the United States yesterday, on motion of Mr. George Wilson, the proper oath having been administered in the U. S. District Court.

THAT ENCAMPMENT.

The Bivouac of the Fourteenth Regiment—What the People of Monongahela Think About the Boys.

The Monongahela Republican, speaking of the encampment of the Fourteenth Regiment at that place, has this to say:

"The encampment of the Fourteenth Infantry, Col. S. W. Hill, which bivouaced at Dry Run Grove from the 18th to the 24th, has been most pleasant in every respect. Our citizens were somewhat apprehensive, having in mind the oft-told story of the 'bummer', and his proclivity for chickens and fences; but the result has been so entirely satisfactory that the visit of the Fourteenth, with its gallant officers and disciplined troops will be remembered with great pleasure, and referred to as an "episode" of more than usual gratification by our citizens. The arrival on Wednesday, the evening parades, the midnight serenades, the sham battle, the impressive Sabbath afternoon services, the delightful music of the Cathedral band, the elegant ball at Armory Hall, the brilliant review of Saturday, the many enlivening scenes of camp and drill—all these were crowded so fast upon each other that the week seemed to be one of unalloyed pleasure and excitement, and we are glad to say, without anything to mar its perfect enjoyment. The soldiers were polite, the officers ever chivalrous in their deference to the hundreds of ladies who visited Camp Gallagher, and our streets witnessed no scene of rowdyism or even rudeness. The conduct of Colonel Hill's entire command was sans reproach. On the other hand, it is a matter of much gratulation that our own citizens reciprocated this spirit, and in many ways made it pleasant for the boys in blue. Wagons were freely furnished to haul the baggage, horses were tendered General Pearson and staff for the review, private houses were thrown open to entertain the wives and daughters of the officers, and we heard no complaints of any one trying to fleece the troops in any capacity. All went along smoothly—and if we may believe the expressions of both soldiers and citizens, there was mutual good feeling and an entire cordiality.

"Pittsburgh may well be proud of this organization, and we trust that when, in the future, they may be looking for a place to spend another camping season, Monongahela City and Dry Run Grove will not be forgotten."

Leg Fractured.

About noon yesterday Mr. Christian Compass, a butcher, who resides on Third street, started to drive down Wickline's lane to Spring Garden avenue, with a load of lumber, which slipped forward and frightened the horse, which ran off. Mr. Compass was thrown off the wagon, and it passed over him, fracturing one of his thighs. Is is believed he is injured internally.

....Wallace Nesbit, a young man, while working in a harvest field near Livermore, a few days ago, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. A storm suddenly coming up, the harvesters, of whom there were a number, sought shelter under a tree close by. His clothes were torn into shreds, and part of his body rendered entirely nude.

....Bridget Nolan attempted to climb over the railing of the Suspension bridge on Wednesday afternoon and commit her body to the waters of the Allegheny, but officer Hugh Boyle declined to permit the performance, and obliged Bridget to peacefully pedestrianate to the other side. She said that it cost more to live than to die, but the personal evidences of her devotion to alcoholic stimulants would seem to indicate that liquor was the bane of her existence. Isn't it somewhat singular that whisky impels many persons to self destruction, but that in the majority of cases instead of using it until life is extinct they finally turn crusader and die from an excessive use of water.

....The Lecture Committee of the Y. M. L. A. have begun active preparations for the ensuing season. They have been in correspondence with a number of the shining lights of the lyceum platform, and have secured a number of old favorites, but the list has not yet been prepared. Steele MacKaye, John G. Saxe and J. Proctor Knott, of Kentucky. The committee, however, as yet are not prepared to make an official announcement of the list, as many who have partially promised to come have not been "closed with." The lecturers this year seem to stick to high prices, notwithstanding the tight times, and hence prices for tickets can hardly be lowered.

A HEARING was had before Deputy Mayor Hoerr, of the South Side, yesterday, in which Catharine Riley, Maggie McDonald, Mary McNally and a number of other parties figured rather conspicuously. Maggie McDonald was committed to answer to a charge of aggravated assault and battery at the next term of Court.

WESLEY TOBIAS, Reuben Johnson, Adam Wilbur, Isaac Brown, George Dean, et al. have given bail for a hearing on a charge of riot, preferred against them by Mary Poland et al., before Alderman Smith, of Allegheny. The prosecutrix and defendants are all colored, and the trouble grew out of rather rough treatment which the plaintiffs allege they received at the hands of the accused at a picnic at Monitor grove on the 19th inst., in which they aver they were ejected from a carriage which had been hired for them by a friend. Charges of assault and battery have also been brought against the same defendants.

MT. SEWICKLEY.

The Clos[illegible] Exercises of the Camp Meeting—The Last Day's Services—"The Great Day of the Feast"—A Review of the Meeting—The Success Achieved.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette:

MT. SEWICKLEY, August 26, 1875.

Yesterday Rev. A. W. Butts, of Smithfield street church, preached a deeply interesting sermon from the text found in psalm 49 1 to 3 verse, "I waited patiently on the Lord, &c." The discourse was full of clear thought and very practical throughout.

In the evening Rev. W. Lynch preached an able, clear discourse from 119 psalm, 59 to 60 verses. "I thought upon my ways and turned my feet, &c." At the close of the service and after a forcible exhortation by Rev. L. McGuire, many came forward for prayer and quite a number were converted.

This is the last day, and with the thought comes a degree of sadness. The people have left these grounds in years gone by with feelings of deep solemnity, but never so great as now. Everybody seems to have a peculiar attachment, and dreads leaving, but the order of the managers is all-potent, and we must go, although while going, we cherish a love for this hallowed spot that will never be forgotten by any.

This year has been one of remarkable religious warmth. Not only have many souls been converted, but formal and backslidden professors have been revived. Many were led to believe in and seek after purity of heart, and undoubtedly the influence of the meeting will be felt for many years.

Not a jar has been felt nor a word of complaint heard to mar the happiness and pleasure of the cottagers. More visitors have been here this year than ever before. Everybody was pleased, not only with the location of the grounds, but with the great harmony prevailing among the managers. So great is the appreciation for cottages that it has been decided to plan a new circle, commencing at the outer boarding tent and extending around the road and through the beautiful grove to the end of the row on the upper side of the present circle. The lots are not to be sold, but given on a perpetual lease, the "tenant" to build his own house and pay an annual rental. The new cottages must be built on the same plan as those now erected, the uniformity of which is a great feature of Mt. Sewickley.

Old Father Jackson conducted the public worship this morning at six o'clock, the audience being quite large.

The experience meeting at eight o'clock was conducted by Rev. J. W. Kessler, and it was a repetition of the powerful meeting we had yesterday morning, and very many spoke.

Another sermon of remarkable power was preached by Rev. A. W. Butts at the one o'clock service. The reverend gentleman recited a poem, which, with the sermon, produced a great effect. One soul was converted during its delivery, and at its close shouts were heard and tears seen all over the congregation.

Children's church was conducted by Rev. A. L. Petty, who, with Thos. Chantler, made addresses which greatly interested the little ones, the singing being conducted by Prof. Horner.

At 3 P. M. Rev. J. M. Swan preached an excellent sermon from Acts 2d chapter, 21st verse, "And it shall come to pass that the name of the Lord," &c. The audience was quite large and the sermon very appropriate.

The last sermon of the regular meeting was preached by Rev. A. B. Castle from the text found in 19 chap. John 18 verse. After preaching Rev. L. McGuire made one of the most effective exhortations it has been the fortune of your correspondent to hear, and after the singing of the "Railroad song" by Prof Horner, which produced a great effect. many responded to the invitation, and quite a number were converted. At the close of the exercises, John F. Dravo, Esq., made an address on the origin and progress of the camp meeting society. Several other addresses were made, one by Hon. D. N. White on the spiritual benefits of the camp meeting, one by Rev. E. B. Snyder to the unconverted, one to the church members by Rev. A. L. Petty, and one by Rev. Dr. Nesbit, after which there was a general hand-shaking, and the meeting closed at the stand for the year 1875. After closing singing was again commenced, and as I sit writing shouts of happiness are heard going up from many, who, it is expected, will extend the meeting until midnight, and the meeting will close the most glorious and beneficial ever held on the grounds.

Allow your correspondent to return thanks to the courteous conductors of the E. & P. R. R. for services they rendered in forwarding letters to you from Mt. Sewickley; also to Rev. A. L. Petty for favors received.

BERT.

[We have been indebted to our friend, Dr. I. B. Chantler, of Sewickley, for the graphic and interesting letters from Mt. Sewickley Camp-meeting which have appeared in our columns. The disciple of Esculapius seems to be equally at home with the pen or the pestle and mortar, and in both directions is a success. We extend him our thanks and the thanks of our readers, who through him have been kept posted of matters at Mt. Sewickley.—EDS.]

JUDGE KELLEY IN TOWN.

The Visitors at Detroit on the Home Stretch—Whistling to Keep Their Courage Up—Their Opinion of the Situation.

Yesterday afternoon a trio of travel-weary and dust-begrimed gentlemen of grave and reverend mien debarked from a car from the West, at the Union depot, and sought rest and refreshment within the friendly portals of the Depot Hotel. Preliminary to taking possession of the comfortable quarters assigned them, they ornamented the hotel register with a few chirographic flourishes, from which those who had not previously recognized them, learned that the party consisted of Judge W. D. Kelley, of Philadelphia, Judge T. J. Durand and Col. Ed. Daniels, of Virginia and late a member of the editorial fraternity. The travelers were returning home from Detroit, where they had met a few friends, and had been engaged in wrestling with the problem of our national finances. Their herculean labors seemed not to have exhausted them, and after a brief rest they were able to receive friends, and were as chatty and agreeable as it was meet for great financiers to be.

Coming fresh from the gathering at Detroit, of course their thoughts and conversation ran principally in financial channels. They seemed somewhat perturbed at what they termed a lack of veracity in the Associated Press reporter at Detroit, who only saw six hundred people at the great outpouring, whereas, on their honor as gentlemen, they were sure there were no less than from fifteen hundred to two thousand persons present, and deeply interested in the proceedings. Judge Kelley especially, who naturally was leader and spokesman of the trio, was in good spirits and hopeful. He considered the Detroit meeting a success, considering all the circumstances. One of these circumstances of an untoward character, he stated, was that the manufacturers of the city were rather opposed to the meeting, and had given notice to their men that they did not desire them to be present under pain of dismissal from their places. The manufacturers, however, have yet to be heard from. The Judge thought that they were gaining ground every day—a cheerful view of the situation which the others endorsed with enthusiasm. He spoke of several engagements which he had for speeches in the West—among other places Cincinnati being mentioned. The people, he thought, were coming around to the standpoint he, with others, occupied in reference to the national finances, but of course a complete revolution could not be expected in a day.

This was the burden of their conversation, and the serenity with which they seemed to take in the situation seemed not unlike the composure of the urchin who finds it necessary to allow his exuberance of spirits, as he passes through a cemetery, to find vent in a cheery whistle.

The party, while not engaged discussing finances, spent an hour or two rambling through the city. They left on the 7:40 train last evening for Philadelphia.

AMUSEMENTS.

Fifth Avenue Comedy Theatre.

The change of programme introduced by Mr. Ryan at this theater last night presented his company in new and entertaining specialties, all of which were received by the audience with evident satisfaction. Next week the new play of "Jim Bludsoe," with Milton Nobles in the title character, will be produced, and the management anticipate that it will meet with success, as it has proved a good card in all the cities in which it has been presented. It is sensational in its character, and said to be something after the style of "Across the Continent."

Trimble's Varieties Theatre.

Fred Aims still maintains first class attractions at his theater, and always endeavors to have his patrons feel, when they have left at the close of the evening's entertainment, that what they have seen and heard has recompensed them for the money expended in gaining admittance. A good bill is offered every night.

Hint to the Lean.

The cause of leanness, when there is no positive disease which produces it, is an imperfect assimilation of the food. The weight of the body undoubtedly bears a marked relation to, and increases proportionately to its height, when it is properly nourished with flesh-making blood. Hence, when we see a person with "slab" sides and hollow cheeks, we have a right to infer that his blood is thin and watery and his constitution delicate. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is peculiarly servicable to thin, delicate people, since it strengthens the digestive and assimilative organs, and is consequently a powerful auxiliary in the blood manufacturing processes, which in a state of health ought to be thoroughly performed. An increase of muscle, as well as fat, is a result of using this sovereign anti-dyspeptic, appetizing and generally corrective cordial.
